The track is level and not a single By profit on brewing account tunnel will have to be made. With regard to the probable cost Lord Connemara is undecided in opinion. At home the cost of a similar railway would not exceed £2,000 per mile, but Lord Connemara adds rather ominously, "it may cost To interim dividend paid in July, 1890 £10,000 per mile." With regard to labour, always a great consideration in these undertakings, it is his opinion that very little difficulty should arise. In the first place the district is healthy, a great By balance point in its favour. The labour is mostly Chinese, although a good many Annameso are employed. Of the latter about half are old pirates and robbers, who work well and without giving the slightest trouble in their new employment. Here at any rate is one good result of the opening of the mines, although perhaps hardly a powerful one from a shareholder's point of view. With regard to the general prospects of the M.
